At JRB Sports, we understand the complexity of the college recruiting process. That's why we have designed a comprehensive program to guide you through every step of the way. Here's how we do it:

- The Player profile: We help you to build a player profile that showcases your unique talents and abilities to college coaches. We work with you to ensure that your profile is a clear and concise picture of the student athlete.
- The College list: We discuss your goals and speak with your coaches to help you build a workable and realistic college list. We ensure that your list aligns with your abilities and your college goals.
- The communication with schools: We provide you with the tools and templates for when and how to communicate with college coaches. We manage the entire communication cycle and prepare you for calls with coaching staffs. Our goal is to provide you with the best possible chance of being noticed by college coaches.
- Advocating for the student athlete: We communicate with all of the college coaches on your list introducing you. Using our 25 years of experience and contacts in the college game, we personally communicate with each coaching staff throughout the process. We advocate for you to get the best possible opportunity to play college sports.
- ID camps & showcase opportunities: We advise on any ID camps a player is considering to assure the camp is worth the time and money and will actually help their overall recruiting process. We reach out to the coaches prior to the ID event to ensure you get the best look possible. At the conclusion of the camp, we seek out feedback and review with you.
- Full-time consulting: As a part of this package, each student athlete can reach out to us on any recruiting questions with answers within 24-hours via email, text, or call. We are available to provide support and guidance throughout the entire process.
